Overview of WCRL

World Cynosport Rally Limited (WCRL) was organized in 2012 to acquire the operations of the Rally Obedience program created and conducted by the Association of Professional Dog Trainers (APDT), who in 2001 first introduced the sport of Rally Obedience to the world. WCRL is a fun and dynamic team sport for pet owners and their dogs designed to test proficiency in training while navigating sequences of obedience exercises on a uniquely styled course. WCRL is a sport that anyone can do, regardless of physical limitations. Dogs of all ages and breeds, purebred and mixed, are encouraged to participate.

WCRL is an affiliate of United States Dog Agility Association (USDAA), the world's largest independent authority for the sport of dog agility. USDAA effected the acquisition of the APDT Rally program on the premise that obedience is at the root of all dog sports, and is a key component to public outreach in demonstrating and teaching responsible pet ownership by being active with one's dog in a quality environment. The interaction in dog sports helps to build the trust and bond between handler and dog. Handler and your dog heel through a timed course of stations and perform the specific exercises indicated on each sign. Various signs direct a dog and handler team to turn left or right, and guide them through moves like sit and down, stay, come, fast or slow, and heeling maneuvers. The courses are unique each time. Rally exercises and movements are real-life skills that can be used in everyday life.

One distinguishing facet of WCRL is that it allows food and touch rewards at all levels!
