

Bulldogs with AKC Farm Dog Certification titles

Compiled by Bea Page Thank you to this titles source: The BCA

AKC's Farm Dog certification titling program launched in July of 2016. Testing is comprised of twelve exercises intended to represent situations a farm dog would encounter in a typical farm environment (must include livestock of some kind). The test has been described as similar to a CGC evaluation in a farm-like setting. Testing does not, however, have to take place on an actual farm or outdoors. A farm setting may be simulated for FDC testing purposes. FDC initially was conducted only by Herding Test judges since they are approved to do testing around livestock; however, AKC subsequently made a provision to allow for individuals who have demonstrated experience/education in the care of livestock to be eligible to apply to judge FDC Tests. An FDC title requires passing the test two times, with a different judge for each of the two passes.
